The Herd is getting smaller,
There are fewer of their kind.
Let us pause a silent moment
For the thoughts they've left behind.

Ven. Archdeacon Cecil Swanson, D.D.

Archdeacon Cecil Swanson is an English Londoner by birth and a Westerner by choice, first arriving at Fort Pitt on the North Saskatchewan in 1909. After ordination by Bishop Isaac O. Stringer in 1913 he served his Church in the Yukon Territory in the last days of the Old North. Coming to Alberta in 1922 he worked in Lethbridge and all over Southern Alberta, and came to Calgary as Rector of St. Stephen's. Then the far West called and he was Dean of Christ Church, Vancouver in the war years and the post-war period i.e. 1940-53. For seven years he fell from western grace and worked at St. Paul's, Toronto, returning to retire and live in Calgary — "God's Country," he calls it. B. H. K.

Country," he calls it. Bill Kuehli

 The Rotary Club, Canadian Club, United Nations' Association, the Masonic Order, all have a share in the life of this active citizen who is the speaker at this year's "Range Men's Dinner." Among his friends he always delighted to reckon Clem Gardner and Douglas Hardwick, those hardy specimens of the ranches' breed.

Tonight we welcome as our Speaker, the Ven. Archdeacon Cecil Swanson, D.D., a worthy representative of the Anglican Church. The Archdeacon has spent 55 years of his life in the West, and is no stranger to Western cattlemen—he knew you when—
In August 1875 the first detachment of Mounted Police stood on the rim of the North Hill, and looked over the valley of the Bow. What did they see? nothing but wild prairie grass and a few trees along the Rivers. Yet there was something, something even before 1871 when David Macdougall brought the first cattle into the Morley district, before Fred Kannouse drove a small herd into Southern Alberta and turned them loose, and that something was Religion. Belmont

10 miles up the Elbow River the legendary Father Lacombe and Father Ducette had a Catholic Mission, Father Lacombe came West in 1852. At Morleyville the Rev. George and his Son John Macdougall ministered to the Stoney Indians; they came in 1865. In 1820 the Anglican Missionaries the Rev. John West and James Evans established a Mission at Norway House, the Rev. John Black the Presbyterian came in 1857. The Rev. Robt. Rundle in 1840.

We are happy to have Swanny with us tonight.

We welcome him as one of us.
